
School of History, Classics and ArchaeologyTeaching Fellowship in Archaeology*Grade: F Vacancy Ref: B27179A*Academic Job Summary

The University has developed Academic Job Summary Guidance which summarises the range of activities that academic staff may be expected to perform. Academic staff are not expected to be discharging all of the activities all of the time and the actual duties and activities that academic staff are expected to carry out will be determined by the Head of Academic Unit. The Job Summary Guidance document can be found at

<http://www.ncl.ac.uk/hr/recruitment/role-profiles.php>

Academic Staff Development

Newcastle University accords parity of esteem to teaching and research; aims to deliver teaching and facilitate learning of the highest quality; and invests in excellent staff. A popular course in academic practice is available for staff with responsibilities in teaching and research supervision and new appointees are required to gain the first module. Full details of Newcastle University's Certificate in Advanced Studies in Academic Practice can be found at <http://www.ncl.ac.uk/staffdev/devactivities/academic/accredited.htm>

Specific Responsibilities of Position

The successful candidate will be an experienced university teacher able to undertake research-led teaching in British/European later prehistory and archaeological theory. He/she will be expected to three lead existing modules (ARA 1001 Stuff: Living in a Material World; ARA 3025 Social Prehistory of Neolithic and early Bronze Age Britain and ARA 8090 Research Themes, Theories and Skills in Archaeology) and to supervise dissertations at both undergraduate and post-graduate level. We welcome applications from specialists who will enhance or complement the existing interests of archaeologists in the School.

Informal enquiries to Dr Jane Webster (jane.webster@ncl.ac.uk) or Professor Sam Turner (sam.turner@ncl.ac.uk)

Person Specification

Knowledge (inc. Qualifications)

Essential

- Good quality first degree in Archaeology
- Experience of both undergraduate and post graduate module leadership
- Experience of dissertation supervision at both undergraduate and post-graduate (MA) level

Desirable

- PhD in relevant subject
- Good research track record including publications
- A qualification or recognition in HE Teaching and Learning

Skills (professional, technical, managerial, practical)

Essential

- Ability to work as part of a team
- Ability to work on own initiative
- Willing to collaborate with other disciplines within the School and University
- Sensitivity to the views of others
- Ability to work to deadlines
- Good communication skills
- Enthusiasm for the task in hand

Experience and Achievements (paid or unpaid)

Essential

- Significant and highly-rated record of teaching in higher education

For full details about this vacancy and essential information on how to apply, visit our Job Vacancies web page at <http://www.ncl.ac.uk/vacancies/>